PLEASANTVILLE, PENNSYLVANIA

Mayor Martha Long and Harvey Long

2026 Grand Marshal
Sheryl Walters

As we celebrate Stars, Stripes and Summer Nights and 250 years of American independence, we also celebrate the homespun heroes whose quiet service makes Pleasantville a wonderful place to call home.

For more than a decade, Sheryl Walters faithfully served our community as Festival Pageant Director, Festival Committee President and Vice President, Pleasantville Borough Tax Collector, and through 21 years at Northwest Savings.

A proud five-year cancer survivor, she exemplifies resilience, kindness, and an unwavering commitment to others.

Of all the roles she has cherished, one stands above the rest - being "Gigi" to her six beloved grandchildren: Kessa, Kendal, Grace, Amiya, Zeke, and Raelynn.

The Pleasantville Community Festival is proud to honor Sheryl Walters as our 2026 Grand Marshal.

The Pleasantville Community Festival Committee extends our heartfelt thanks to the communities of Pleasantville, Titusville, and the surrounding area for your incredible support.

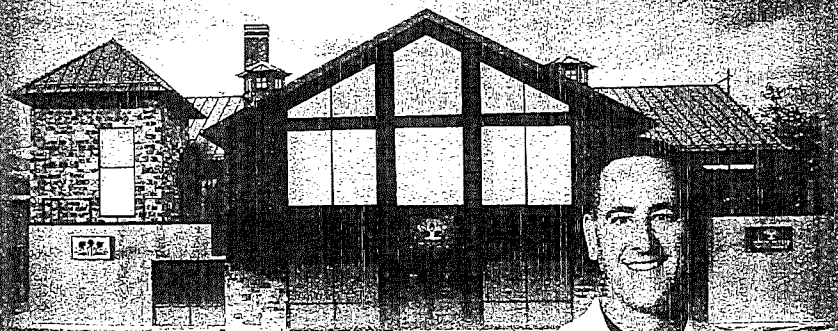

Every year, we're reminded that a festival isn't built by one committee - it's brought to life by countless generous volunteers, sponsors, businesses, organizations, entertainers, first responders, and neighbors who give their time, talents, and encouragement so freely.

Your kindness, hard work, and community spirit are what make our Festival possible. We are truly grateful to everyone who helps create the memories that make this tradition so special.

From all of us on the Pleasantville Community Festival Committee - thank you for helping make our community shine!

Bubbles Sent to Heaven

Only twenty-three.
Although young,
she already had lived
in a way most never dare,
Wild, bright, untamed, and unafraid.

Backflips into the pond,
muddy four-wheeler rides through puddles,
the Florida sun soaking into her skin,
the glide of a wave beneath her kayak paddle,
witness to sunsets and sunrises,
awake with the stars,
the ones that sparkled like her eyes.

Dance parties,
where living rooms became arenas,
spinning, jumping, singing,
crowds cheering,
as the volleyball sailed through the air.
Fearless,
like the thrill of holding something alive,
a creature,
within the palm of her hands.

Brooke's laugh,
a contagion.
A melody you didn't just hear,
you felt.
A blend of harmonies,
a ripple that drew people in.
She was never meant to be contained,
not by walls,
not by rules,
not by time.

So maybe she isn't gone.
Maybe she's in every breeze,
in every field,
where wildflowers bloom,
and poppies and dandelions sway.
In the gentle touch of a monarch,
softly landing on your skin.
In every song that plays too loud,
where the bass rattles your chest.
In the hum of stories and laughter,
shared between friends.
Through the crackle of a flame.
a flicker of light,
of hope,
that maybe she's still out there.

Layla, her little niece,
holding the hand of an invisible friend,
her "Aunt Brookie".
Blowing bubbles,
and sending them into the sky,
up to Heaven.
Her shining, innocent little eyes looking up,
certain that they reach our Bub.

Her spirit lives on in all of us.
Her legacy is free, boundless.
It is ours to carry.
In the kindness we share,
in laughter,
in music,
in bubbles sent to Heaven,
and living room dance parties that never end.
For her.
For Brooke.

Thomas Abrams

Remember Me

Remember me when laughter fills the air, when something small turns brighter unaware; remember me when ordinary days are warmed by quiet, unexpected rays.

Remember me—but not with heavy heart, not as a silence pulling you apart: for if you smile, and find a lighter way, then I am nearer than I was yesterday.

If you forget me for a moment's grace, and joy should gently
take my place, do not hold tight to sorrow's thread—
it's better far to laugh instead.

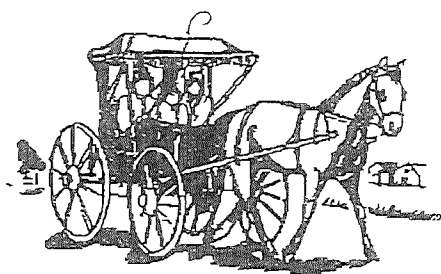

For I was one who found the light in things, in fleeting moments, in the joy life brings; so let that be the way I linger still — in easy laughter, and in quiet will.

Remember me in brightness, not in grey, in all the good that carries on each day; and if you do, then I am always near — alive in every smile that finds you here.
